Nathan Thayer, in the Regiment commanded by Col. Ebenezer Thayer.

We marched immediately from Midway, Mass, to Great Barrington, Mass., was stationed there a few days then marched to West Point, New York, where we were stationed most of the remainder of the team, except when out on scouting expeditions, which was very often and was discharged sometime in the month of October the same year, being out in the said service more than three months, according to the return of the Secretary of this Common wealth, three months and six days, also, sometime in the month of July 1781, the said Elias Adams, enlisted into another company of Massachusetts State Troops or Malitia, commanded by Capt. For proof of this last tour of service, reference is had to the Deposition of [Awize?] Holbrook, which is hereunto annexed. Both terms of service amounting at least to seven months and six days.
