The declarant again entered the service under Lieutenant Eliakim Barnum for two months—as declarant believes in the year 1776 or 1777, & was marched to the fort at the place called Constitution Island nearly opposite West Point and remained in garrison there for the said term when he was discharged – There was but one regiment there as he believes—but he does not remember the name of any field or company officer there, except the said Barnum & Captain Storms—nor does he know whether he was in the State troops, or Militia.

The declarant again entered the minute service in the year 1777—He marched on a minutes warning, under Captain Hezekiah Mead to Danbury upon an alarm. The enemy had burned some houses & retreated before Captain Meads company arrived there & the declarant returned with the company & was discharged after a weeks service—He does not remember the name of any other officers who were there.

He was again called out on an alarm under Captain Hezekiah Mead, the time not recollected, was marched to Fishkill Dutchess County, thence to Scarbank Plains in Westchester County and after ten days service was discharged. The declarant again entered the service in the militia as a substitute for one Zebulon Wright who was drafted for two months. The declarant marches with the company to Fishkill Dutchess County, then crossed the Hudson River & marched to Goshen in Orange County, afterwards returned to Fishkill & was there discharged with the company—He does not remember the name of any officer engaged in this service—there was but one company on this expedition the captain was then a stranger to this declarant & the declarant cannot now remember his name.

Zebulon Wright for whom the declarant served as a substitute over twenty years ago—The declarant cannot remember the month or year of this service.

The declarant again entered the service under Captain Comfort Ludington. He cannot remember the year or month when he enlisted he served a month under this enlistment in the winter in very severe weather—He was marched with his company by land to near New York City & for a time stationed near a fort there in possession of the enemy. They had a skirmish there & returned [?]

They succeeded in the main object of the enterprise, which was to secure provisions & forage & they brought up such provisions & forage as would be provided to our troops at White Plains—The inclemency of the weather was such that many perished with the cold—at the expiration of this month's service, the declarant was honorably discharged. He does not remember the name of any officer except Captain Comfort Ludington.

During the revolution the declarant served as guard, upon the road in Frederickstown for one month in one winter, and one month in the next winter, to watch & protect the country against the depredations of the tories who were then making great ravages—The year is onto recollected by declarant—for the first month above spoken of the declarant stood guard in the road every other night in Frederickstown and the month spoke of the next winter he stood guard every fourth night—In both instances this service was rendered by the order of Captain Hezekiah Mead & as declarant understood & believed it was by the command of Colonel Henry Livingston.
