An in the following year 1776 he performed a like service of four months. The above services were rendered (according to my best recollection and belief and from the information given me by the said Nicholas and the traditionary evidence of the times) in guard duty at the various posts or defences on the Mohawk River, as will more fully appear by the annexed affidavits.

That in the year 1777 the said Nicholas was engaged in like service two months on the north side of the Mohawk and at Fort Hunter, in the spring of the year, and that in July same year he was called out and marched up the River and was in the battle of Oriskany under Gen Herkimer who was mortally wounded in said battle as this deponent was informed on his return from said expedition, he was out in service this time two months.

And that during the remainder of the war, he continued acting as a sergeant in said company performing to the amount of three or four months each and every year thereafter the remainder of the war, amounting in the whole to between twenty four and thirty months as will more fully appear by refferance [reference] to the said affidavits annexed.

She further declares that she was married to the said Nicholas Quackenboss on the 8th day of April 1777 and that her husband died on the 21st April 1830 and that she has remained a widow ever since. (Signed with her mark) Magdalen Quackenboss.
