That he entered the service of the United States in the year 1779 or 1780 in September, under Captain Anthony Brace, Lieut. The fight at Stone Araby [Arabia] was while he was marching and before he got to Fort Plain—the prisoners and wounded were brought in to Fort Plain about the time he got there—this was about the last of September or first of October of that year.

From there he went to German Flatts up the Mohawk and soon returned to Fort Plain—from there to Fort Hunter, then to Schenectady and to Albany—he was discharged above Fort Plain by orders, was out on this service about two weeks.

That during that summer, and fall, & beginning of winter, he was out under the same company officers, at least one day & night in each week, watching the enemy & the services & patrolling the public highways—and was under orders all the time—this was the year before the treaty of peace—and this service was continued until the news of the treaty, when Captain Brace called the company together and finally dismissed them.

That the first services above mentioned, were rendered at times of alarms—and the last was as above stated, in guarding against the Tories principally, who were about stealing horses and cattle & driving them to the enemy—That these services in all amounted to more than a year—that he was not in any particular engagement or fight.
